EDMONTON REPORT

By Donald F. Smith
Special Correspondent

EDMONTON Standing ovations for political party leaders were the order of the day in Alberta and Saskatchewan last week.

In Saskatoon's Bessborough hotel 150 delegates applauded and cheered British Columbia's Social Credit premier, W. A. C. Bennett, who defeated from the Conservative party in 1951 after internal party strife.

In Edmonton's Macdonald hotel, 300 delegates perormed similar actions after J. Harper Prowse, Liberal leader in Alberta declared he wanted to continue to head the party.

Premier Bennett was addressing a banquet on the eve of the Saskatchewan Social Credit League's convention, while Mr. Prowse spoke at the Alberta Liberal Association convention.

Mr. Bennett told his audience that the Liberal party is at its weakest since Confederation and is a shell of its once-great power. He also claimed the other political parties lack unity.

Meanwhile, in Edmonton, Duncan K. McTavish, president of the National Liberal Federation, told Alberta Liberals the Social Credit and CCF parties, along with the Nationalists of Quebec, are splinter parties preaching antagonism to what they call the "rest of Canada' and added the Liberal party was "never more united, never more firm in its determination to work for greater unity and to oppose . . . the dangerous work of sectionalists."

Social Credit leaders told the Saskatoon meeting there is every hope the party will sweep into power in the next federal election, while Alberta's Premier E. C. Manning, a special guest at the meeting, said: "It is not 'Will there be a Social Credit government?' but 'How soon?'"

Back in Edmonton, the Liberals were talking of rumblings of discontent about the Social Credit government and Mr. McTavish said "in due time the people of Alberta will find that manning the provincial government with Liberals will end a reign of fear' and will open a new era of freedom, fairness and clear thinking in provincial affairs."

The Saskatchewan Social Credit delegates heard Premier Bennett warn that as the date of a federal election approaches there will be a "tremendous attack" in which, he said, "they ll try to make the people fear Social Credit like they did in B.C. The fear campaign," he added, "will be the result of the Liberals' fear they are going down to defeat."

Coming back to the Alberta Liberal convention, the delegates in resolutions, advocated a change in the Assessment Act designed to help spread the province's riches among the ordinary citizens. They called for an assessment exemption of $1,000 for every owner of a dwelling or quarter-section of land. According to the resolution it would mean a reduction of at least $50 in taxes to each home or land-owner.

The loss such an exemption would mean to the municipalities, the resolution continued, would be met by increased grants to municipalities on an unconditional basis. Delegates said the assessment exemption is not needed by business firms because their realty taxes can be deducted from income taxes.

In another resolution the convention called for a referendum on the Alberta Liquor Act with the object of amending it "in the interests of all citizens in the province so it will command respect and support."

The convention also called on the provincial and federal governments for aid to the farmer. In particular, the provincial government was asked to provide financial aid and help in the seed situation expected as a result of poor summer weather. The federal government was asked to solve the problems which are making it difficult for farmers to obtain credit, despite having grain on their farms.

Next year's convention is expected to consider the matter of the party leadership. W. J. Edgar, of Innisfail, was re-elected president of the Liberal Association. Vice-presidents are: Harley Conrad, of Clairmont; Andre Dechene, Edmonton; Mrs. R. L. Nicolson, Calgary; Claude Brewster, Banff; Dr. Lyall Wyatt, Medicine Hat, and Raymond Walker, Raymond,

Presented With Silver Trays

Accomplishments of Local Residents Recognized at Board of Trade Banquet

Honoring several local citizens on their achievements and for bringing fame and honor to the community, the Vulcan District Board of Trade tendered a banquet Wednesday evening, Nov. 24, in the I.O.O.F. hall. Present were some 150 local citizens among them the honored guests: Commodore Allan, Hank Willard and outriders of chuckwagon fame; Eloise Whiteside, Glen Gorbous, Pat Walker, Buddie Palmer and B. H. A. McDonald.

Henry Viney, sports announcer from radio station CFCN in Calgary, Jack Henthorne, grandstand announcer; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richards, Calgary; and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Cooper, Sr., Nanton, were also in attendance.

Guests were welcomed to the banquet by Mayor W. D. Allan and the invocation was given by M. R. Morrison. Later, Art Jones accompanied by Mrs. Marion Paris, led in community singing. Two much appreciated songs in dialect were given by Charles Northcott, "The Swede from Norway.'

Henry Viney was master of ceremonies for the evening, and with his usual breezy, ear-to-listen-to patter, kept the crowd entertained and paid some very fine tributes on the accomplishments of those being feted

Suitable engraved silver trays were presented to each guest of honor. Harold Ulmr, vice-principal of the Vulcan High School made the prsentation to Eloise Whiteside. Eloise won the public speaking United Nations award, sponsored by the Milo and Vulcan I.O.O.F. and Rebekah lodges, last winter. In July she was among six young people from the province who participated in a visit to the United Nations in New York city. Many other U.S. cities and places of historical interest were shown those attending this World Peace movement, and the aims and objectives of the United Nations were shown the boys and girls.

Josh Henthorne, who for the past 50 years has been announcing, first at the Calgary Fair and later at the world-famous Stampede, from the grandstand, and has almost became a fixture among Stampede personnel, made the presentation to the Commodore Allan Chuckwagon champions. Mr. Allan, owner of the outfit; Hank Willard, the driver, who for three successive year has made top time with the Allan outfit; the outriders, Bob Gooch, Orville Sandquist, O. Lister and Norman Haynes, (the latter was unable to attend) were all commended most highly by Mr. Henthorne, and each received a silver tray.

Glen Gorbous, who has gained considerable attention in the baseball world, having first played, as a child, at Drumheller, then in Vulcan; then with the Calgary 99er's and for the past several seasons with Brooklyn Dodgers teams, and has now been drafted for spring tryouts as an outfielder with the Cinncinnatti Reds in the National League, received much fine encouragement for the future and was highly commended for accomplishments to date, by Mr. Viney. Frank Richards, coach for the Track and Field team that competed in the first British Empire Games held in Canada, in 1931 made the presentation to Glen.

Mr. Richards, whose interest in sports has continued throughout the years and who was again active in coaching for the B.E. games at Vancouver this past summer, made the presenation as well to Vulcan's Pat Walker. Pat, track and field athlete, represented Alberta on the Track and Field team at the Games. Mr. Richards commented that he hoped Pat would not retire from competition as has been rumored. He felt the local man had all the attributes and stamina of a fine athlete and should continue on.

Buddy Palmer, boxer, who won the Golden Boy Trophy and the Canadian Featherweight Champion ship, was presented with his award too, by Mr. Richards. Buddy, although young, has proved himself a fine sportsman and splendid boxer and every encouragement was offered him on this occasion.

The final presentation was made to B. H. A. (Brown) McDonald, district farmer, by Ross Walker. Mr. McDonald, beside owning a model farm where the beautifully landscaped gardens and lawns are visited by many every year, also raises prize sheep, winning the Championship at the Toronto Royal Fair in 1952.

Mr. Viney complimented each honored guest and gave many interesting side-lights on the accomplishments of each.

Don Thomas, also of CFCN, who tape-recorded the whole program, was asked to say a few words. He pleased the many friends of Max (Witts) Morgen, local boy, who before leaving earlier this year, for Australia, was employed as an announcer at CFCN. Mr. Thomas reported that Max is presently in Sydney and plans later to go to India.

The Reid Hill W.I. catered to the banquet and provided a delicious hot meal. Tables were decorated with flags of many nations.

Four Speakers at Oil Forum

Western Canada Oil Industry Confident of Expansion

The oil industry is confident that more oil will be discovered in western Canada and this optimism is based on several factors, said S. P. King, General Manager, Merrill Petroleums Limited, during an open forum on oil at the Vulcan I.O.O.F. Hall, Friday night.

The meeting was one of a series ot open forums on oil arranged through the co-operation of the Canadian Petroleum Association and provincial Chambers of Commerce and other organizations.

One of the factors creating the optimistic outlook for further oil discoveries is the size of the oil hunting ground in western Canada covering some 770,000 square miles.

Mr. King said another important factor "is that the industry has only scratched the surface as far a oil exploration is concerned in this vast area." To date in western Canada one well has been drilled for every 178 square miles of prospective hunting ground. In the United States, one well has been drilled for every 12 square miles.

In terms of money spent, he said the "two dozen or so" oil companies operating in Western Canada in 1946 spent about $1,000,000 a month on oil exploration and development. This year more than 240 companies will spend over $1,000,000 a day for the same thing.

Surprise Couple On 40th Anniverary

Pioneer residents of the Milo district, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Johnk were surprised by about 20 old-time friends and relatives on Sunday, Nov. 21, the occasion being the celebration of the Johnk's 40th wedding anniversary and a "house warming" of their new home.

Lou Douglass, on behalf of the group, presented Mr. and Mrs. Johnk with a lovely mirror. A toast to the bride and groom of 40 years ago was proposed by Mrs. Agnes McKay, with Mr. Johnk making a very suitable reply with reminiscences of the wedding day.

The evening was spent in group singing and with violin selections played by Mr. Johnk, accompanied by Mrs. R. Adam and Mrs. Agnes McKay.

WSWS Convention Here in April

The Women's Society of World Service, of the E.U.B. church, gathered at the home of Mrs. Geo. Hartung for their November meeting. "The Missionary looks to his field," was the theme used for the devotions, led by Mrs. N. Lobsack. Several of the ladies gave short talks on that subject, which were very interesting.

Mrs. Wildeman and Mrs. D. Schierman sang a duet, which was very much enjoyed.

The regular monthly missionary offering was received and some interesting letters from missionaries were read.

There were 11 members and nine visitors present, and during the business meeting plans for the Annual convention which is to take place here in April, were discussed.

There were 10 sick visits reported.

After a very enjoyable evening of fellowship, the hostess served a delicious lunch.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. D. Schierman.

THE WEATHER

First real snow of the winter fell this week, with the ground covered to a depth of about two inches. The mercury sank to about 6 above Wednesday morning but was up around 30 above mark at mid-day. Skies were clear and sunny on Wednesday.

SENIOR CITIZENS . . .

Three of the Senior Citizens entertained by the Vulcan Lionette Club last week are shown above. Spencer Lewis (left) well known farmer of the Kirkcaldy district first came to Alberta as a boy with his father in 1889, homesteading at Sheppard. He moved to the Vulcan district in 1921.

Centre is Mrs. Joyce Carruthers, aged 90, oldest resident present at the banquet. Mrs. Carruthers left England in 1904 and with her first husband, Steve Forrester, homesteaded south-west of Vulcan in 1906. As the oldest of the Vulcan "Senior Citizens," she was presented with a bouquet of roses, the presentation being made by D. H. Galbraith.

Another pioneer homesteader of the district south-west of Vulcan is Chris Zahnd, shown on the right. Now 86 years of age, Mr. Zahnd came here from North Dakota in 1909.

Glen Gorbous Is Draft Choice Of Cincinnati Reds

Glen Gorbous Vulcan ball-player who has been playing with Brooklyn Dodgers farm teams in the States the past five seasons, has been "drafted" by the Cincinnati Reds for a spring tryout with the major league club.

Getting to spring training with a major league club will fulfill a long-standing ambition of the 24-year-old outfielder. In 1952, playing for Pueblo in the Class A Western League, he had a batting average of .336, with 103 runs batted in on 204 hits. The 204 hits in one season still stands as a record for the Western league. Last year Glen played with Fort Worth.

Glen will be carrying the good wishes of a host of friends with him when he reports to the Reds next spring.

County Teachers Meet At Milo

The Vulcan County A.T.A. local met at Milo High School, Friday, Nov. 24, at 8 p.m. with president, T. Clarke conducting the meeting, assisted by secretary Charles Carson.

The business session opened with the following teachers being appointed members of the Conference Committee: Mrs. Avis Hunt, Herronton; Ernest MacDonnell, Armada; Mrs. Ruby Campbell, Carmangay; Bruce Palk, Champion; Philip Husby, Milo; John MacDonnell, Brant; Harley Stamm Arrowwood and Mrs. Fay Markert, Vulcan.

The Conference Committee was asked to choose a nominee to run for election as District Representative on the Executive Council in Edmonton. This nominee would represent the area from Calgary to Carmangay inclusive.

Regular meetings will be held on the last Wednesday in each month, excepting December. The meetings will be held at various schools throughout the County, by this local. The school staff that acts as host for the month will also provide entertainment and refreshments.

Suggestions for entertainment such as guest speakers and discussion groups on current topics were offered by the meeting.

The Carmangay staff offered to be hosts for the January meeting.

D. Yeamans and P. Husby, the investigating committee on the health scheme, presented their finding, giving data comparing the services and premiums of the present scheme to those of the Blue Cross, M.F.I. and A.T.A. schemes. After due consideration the teachers voted in favor of keeping the health scheme now in force.

The business meeting followed by a pleasant evening and lunch, served by the Milo staff.

Former Local Girl Is Wed

Christensen — Hanson

A wedding of interest here was solemnized recently, in Calgary, at Crescent Heights United church, when Opal Adeline, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Hanson of Calgary, formerly of Vulcan, was united in marriage with Lyle Leonard Christensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Christensen, Calgary.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white nylon and chantilly lace, with matching jacket. The gown was embroidered with seed pearls and featured lily-point sleeves. She wore, as "something old' a brooch worn by her mother on her wedding day half a century ago, and she carried a white Bible with American Beauty roses. The groom's gift to the bride was a necklace and matching earrings.

The bride's attendants were her nieces. Mrs. Marjorie Kidner as matron of honor wore a pink nylon net and lace gown and carried pink carnations. Her headdress was of pink net. Mrs. Vivian Bruce was gowned in green nylon and net, fashioned with a stole, she carried green carnations. Mrs. Marlene Pearce chose yellow nylon net, with matching stole and headdress. Her bouquet was of yellow carnations. Miss Donna Hanson as bridesmaid wore a gown and headdress of blue nylon and net and carried blue carnations.

Little Jacquiline Kidner and Sheryl Hanson as flower girls were attired in similar gowns of yellow and blue, respectively and carried baskets of baby mums.

The ring bearer was Leonard Christensen, while Ronald Reimer attended the groom as best man. The second best man was Jean Reimer and ushers were Bill Kidner and Doug Bruce.

During the signing of the register Fred Bodie sang "At Dawning" and later he sang "Because."

A reception for one hundred guests was held at the War Amputation hall, following the ceremony. Receiving the guests were the bridal couple and their parents.

The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by tall white tapers, and bouquets of flowers. Bill Kidner proposed the toast to the bride.

For going away the bride donned a tan dressmaker suit, with which she wore matching accessories. Her corsage was of red roses. The honeymoon was spent at Havre, Mont.

Mr. and Mrs. Christensen have since taken up residence in Calgary.

Wheat Shipping

There is some question as whether the Wheat Board is handling the grain shipping situation in the fairest and most efficient manner.

Vulcan district farmers have been able to deliver only about one and a quarter bushels of the current two-bushel quota and local elevators have not received any empty grain cars for weeks. Meanwhile other points, particularly on the Macleod-High River line have taken in the full two bushel quota and still have room to spare. According to one informant, these points on the other line were still receiving grain cars after they had taken in their quota of grain, meanwhile Champion, Kirkcaldy, Vulcan and other points on the Aldersyde line were plugged so tight with wheat the elevators were unable to accept delivery of the full quota.

A new look at this situation, by the Wheat Board, would seem to be needed.

Best Customers Often Slow

It is apparently an experience of many merchants that their best customers, meaning those customers whose annual purchases total the most, are often slow pay. They are absolutely dependable and sure pay, but they may take their time about it, contenting themselves with squaring up accounts once or twice a year. They have been accustomed to this method of doing business, and are welcome patrons. But modern business being what it is, they overlook that the merchant with whom they deal has to meet his payments to wholesale houses once or maybe twice a month. He is the middleman, pressed by the wholesale houses who have their fixed policy of financing. The merchant knows that in the course of six months or a year these best customers of his will pay up their whopping bills, but in the meantime in many cases he has to borrow from the bank at interest, although he may collect no interest on the overdue accounts.

It has been said that if these best customers could see their way to adjusting themselves to modern demand s and would pay up more frequently, the merchant would then be in the position to extend credit to people who are unable temporarily to pay cash for what they really needs. Most merchants are very reluctant to refuse credit for necessities to trustworthy people who may have met with reverses. But the city wholesaler can take a much more impersonal view, and probably has to if his branch of business chain is to remain solvent. So the small town merchant is the unhappy victim of conflicting pressures, the wholesaler on the one hand, good old customers on the other.

Quite a number of local merchants have instituted the cash system, pointing out that the reduced cost of bookkeeping, financing and so on, will result in best possible service at lowest possible price. Uudoubtedly there should be much saving in expense through this simplified method of doing business, and cash customers will not be slow to note any price reductions. However the alternative plan of advance deposit will in itself involve a certain amount of bookkeeping.

Theoretically most people are agreed that the cash system would be to the eventual benefit of the consumer. There would be as a rule stricter check on purchases, more careful spending, and the individual would be square with board, instead of playing along one month behind. In actual practice it may be somewhat difficult for people who have to budget closely to reorganize their method of payment. It may be still more difficult for farm people who have no regular monthly pay cheque to catch themselves, particularly at this junction. But if this initial hurdle can be taken there will be a more comfortable feeling, especially if merchants keep the faith by passing on savings realized. Minor difficulties are brought up in respect to cash on delivery and so on. But these may iron themselves out more simply than may seem at first sight. In any case the cash system is being tried out, and results should be apparent within a few months.

—High River Times.

Dairy Herd Records

During the past year or two there has been a considerable increase in the numbr of dairy cows kept on farms in this part of Alberta. The dairy cow can be a very efficient source of income for the farm family, in other cases she may be just a boarder who doesn't return enough to the operator to pay for her keep. In many cases its rather difficult to judge the individual unless some system of records are kept. It is the goal of every dairyman to produce milk as efficiently as possible. We all know there are many factors which contribute to the cost of producing milk, but feed and labor charges are by far the most important as they represent approximately 80% of the total production cost.

High production per cow is one of the most important factors in labor and feed utilization. While most dairy farmers are aware of the difference in production of individual cows, few realize the extent to which individual production varies, or how important this factor can be.

In order to assist in determining individual production of each cow in the herd the Department of Agriculture has to offer a System of Cow Testing. This Cow Testing plan is available to any farmer who keeps a few milch cows, and is anxious to improve the efficiency of his dairy enterprise.

Under the scheme two plans are offered, Plan No. 2 is the one that is most popular with the ordinary dairyman or farmer. Under this plan the herd owner agrees to weigh milk poduced by each cow in his herd during a 24 hour period once a month. These weights are entered in a Herd Record Book provided free by the Department.

The herd owner agrees to provide a suitable spring scale, to test every cow during entire lactation period, to take a representative sample from one days milkings of each cow once a month, and to forward the samples together with the Herd Record Book to the testing centre.

The Department of Agriculture will furnish containers for milk samples, provide monthly record books, a sampling dipper, pay transportation charges on sample containers both ways, assume responsibility for testing of samples and issue a statement of production, free of charge.

The herd owner is charged a small fee depending on the size of his herd which varies from $1.00 to $5.00 per year.

Festive Foods in Your Freezer—

If you're the lucky owner of a home freezer then your Christmas baking problems can be solved for you this week. Why not get all those goodies made now and stored in your freezer, then come the busy holiday weeks you'll be able to sit back and relax.

You may freeze your favorite cookies baked or unbaked. If baked just cool thoroughly, package in freezer cartons, bags or freezer paper. Seal and freeze. Don't forget that prettily decorated cookies make wonderful Christmas tree decorations — just loop a piece of green string and press the ends into the dough at the top of each cookie before baking. Bake with string side down on the pan.

Gaily frosted Christmas cookies are freezable too — just use uncooked frostings with a butter base. Decorate your cookies(perhaps as wreaths or bright evergreens) — place on a cookie sheet and place in freezer to harden the icing. When the icing is hard, remove the cookies from the freezer package, seal and freeze. You follow same procedure for freezing iced cakes, too.

Cookie dough may be frozen in freezer cartons, bags or jars as bulk dough. The dough may be rolled and cut into cookies. Stack unbaked cookies with two pieces of freezer paper between them and freeze before wrapping. When solid place in freezer cartons, seal and store. Drop cookie dough may be dropped just as for baking on a cookies sheet and then frozen. Remove from cookies sheet when frozen and package in layers in freezer cartons. Separate layers by two sheets of freezer paper.

Here are some freezer tips to brighten your holiday eating:

—Start now to freeze your left over pie crust in small circles (about 6" diameter) Freeze on a baking sheet, package and you have the makings for a quick dessert of tarts (probably mincemeat.)

—Cut your cranberry sauce into fancy shapes before freezing and be ready to delight your guests.

—Drop a cranberry or a red or green maraschino cherry in your ice cubes before freezing. Fruit cocktail frozen in the ice is still more festive.

You can have biscuits fresh from your freezer those chilly December mornings — here's how — freeze unbaked biscuits in empty orange juice or baby food cans — use the cans as your biscuit cutter, they'll fit exactly. Seal with foil and freezer tape. Then when you want to use them pop them in a 300° F oven for about 15 minutes (until) fully risen) then increase temperature to about 425° and finish baking — about 10 minutes. Delicious and so easy on you!!

In Canada an automobile represents about eight months income for the average industrial worker.

Th Lions' Club entertained their wives at dinner in the Community Hall on Monday, November 22nd. The Little Leaguers and their coaches, Roger Jensen and Keith Groves were also guests of honor. Following the supper a sing-song was enjoyed and several novelty games were played, with Ronnie McGrail as M.C., L. W. Christensen and Bob Stewart led the singing.

During the evening 100% Attendance Pins were presented to twenty-five of the members, and six of these members were also presented with Five Year Attendance Pins. These were L. W. Christensen, Wm. Christensen, Eli Christensen, Glenn Racher, Stan Matlock and Harry Smith. Mr. Hopkins was presented with the Key Member Pin.

Canadian Girls in Training—

The C.G.I.T. held their regular meeting in the United Church on November 16th. After enjoying a delicious supper this meeting was called to order. There was an attendance of ten girls and one visitor, three of which are new members. It was decided that the C.G.I.T. group would carry on their annual sale of Christmas holly on December 18th. June Hames was elected News Correspondent. The planning of Initiation is now well under way for the new members. The next C.G.I.T. meeting will be held on November 30th.

(Following from a San Francisco newspaper)

People here and in Champion will be interested in the career of a former resident of the latter town when they read the account sent to the News by Mrs. C. H. Jorgens who recently returned from Hawaii, on the "Lurline." She had become very interested in the murals around the swimming pool and took some pictures of them. When she returned to San Francisco she happened to buy a paper in which an article on the artist appeared. The article follows:

Don Clever likes big paintings so mural work in his strong suit. He needs all of his six feet to do some of the pieces he has done. He says that "the bigger the job the more I like it." His present ambition is to do a ten mural depicting the earth's creation, right out of Genesis.

Currently residing in San Francisco, Mr. Clever was born in Champion, Alberta and is the son of George Clever, who is at the present time living there. The first art job he had was in his teens when he designed posters and parade floats for a Canadian Milk Company.

The following are some of his outstanding works:

The sea minded mural facing the pool on the Lurline; a mammoth stone mosaic fireplace in the mansion of a Houston millionaire with a weakness for Siamese colors and figures; the magnificient mural of Moses descending Mount Sinaw at Temple Sherith Israel and the tractor mural which Bay Bridge commuters have been admiring for years.

Mr. Clever uses a large variety of materials for his work. He imports colored stones, and work quite easily with wood and stone, and has made some breath-taking mobiles and interior accessories of string and iron. He paints and sketches as effortlessly as he talks. A "Story Land" project is in sketch from which some day may make San Francisco or another city famous for imaginative ideas for children.

Mr. Clever speaks Chinese and has a slight leaning in the direction of all Oriental art.

Fath — Taylor

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of the Immaculate Concention in Champion, on Saturday, November 27th when Joyce Irene, daughter of Mrs. Rachel Taylor of Calgary and the late George Taylor, exchanged vows with Robert Edwin Fath, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Fath of Calgary. Father Connolly performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Harry Taylor, and was attended by her sister, Mrs. A. Overand as matron of honor and Mrs. Allen Fath as bridesmaid. The bride was beautifully gowned in white over tulle and satin, in crinoline style with applique roses outlining the off-shoulder bodice and the peplum and featuring lily-point sleeves. Her finger-tip veil of illusion net fell from a halo headdress. She carried a bouquet of red roses and stephonitis. The matron of honor wore a gown fashioned of net and tulle, the skirt in bouffant style with layers of the two fabrics. Green was the color she choose and the gown was cocktail length and she carried a bouquet of bronze 'mums. The bridesmaid, Mrs. Fath wore a yellow gown similarly styled and she carried yellow baby 'mums. The flower girl, Penny Bloxham, neice of the bride was adorable in a Kate Greenaway frock fashioned from yellow taffeta and she carried a nosegay of 'mums. The guests were ushered to their places by Keith Taylor and Phillip Fath.

The groom was attended by Allen Fath and A. Overand.

A reception for forty-one guests was held in the dining room of the Savoy Hotel. At a table centered with the beautifully iced three-tiered wedding cake and flanked by lighted tapers, the bridal party wished the happy couple a long and happy life. Father Connolly proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom suitably responded. Allen Fath proposed the toast to the bride's mother.

For travelling to Phoenix, Ariz., and other U.S. points on her honeymoon, Mrs. Fath wore a winter white dress with appliqued beige flowers complimented by tan accessories and topped with a blue coat.

On their return the couple will make their home on the groom's farm west of town.

OIL FORUM

What did all this mean to the average Westerner? Because of an increasing supply of local crude oil there was a corresponding increase in the local supply of petroleum products. Thus, as crude oil supplies increased Western refiners found it economical to build new refineries and to expand the capacities of their existing plants.

For this reason, refinery capacity in Western Canada had increased fourfold since 1946 and Edmonton, which had no refineries at that time, now has three.

Because of these factors, since 1948, based on prices in principal cities which are the major refinery centres, the wholesale price of gasoline across the prairies has dropped nearly 14%. The wholesale price does not include the provincial tax — which in Alberta is 10 cents per gallon — or the dealer margin.

The oil revenue received by Alberta was another item of considerable importance, Mr. King said. Since 1946 more than $345,000,000 had been received by the provincial government from royalties, rentals, bonuses, and other payments.

Drilling, Production, and Conservation

Contrary to popular belief oil does not exist in underground pools or lakes. Rather it exists in the pores of rocks and sandstone. The pores in the rock, sandstone, or limestone are connected together and it is through these connecting channels that the oil flows to the well bore when a hole is drilled in the reservoir, said Cal Franke, Chief Petroleum Engineer, Cascade Drilling Co Ltd., as he described drilling, production, and conservation.

In the early stages of the life of a field, intensive study is made of the conditions in the reservoir in order that the maximum amount of oil may be recovered from the field.

Mr. Franke said the rate of production was not an arbitrary one; "All concerned co-operate in arriving at these allowable figures because all concerned are vitally interested in securing the maximum amount of oil from the reservoir."

Prorating and conservation, often confused by the layman, were not the same thing, he said. Conservation was the efficient production of oil so that the maximum economic recovery could be achieved. Prorating, on the other hand, meant simply the sharing of the available market equally among all producers.

Mr. Franke said "We in the oil business make every attempt to secure the maximum amount of oil from the reservoir, and like the farmer, because our market is restricted, our production is prorated so that each producer will receive his share."

Land Leasing, Mineral and Surface Rights

Some of the many difficulties experienced in land leasing and mineral and surface rights negotiations were described by Bob Galbraith, Assistant Chief Landman, Texaco Exploration Company.

He compared oil seekers to prospective home builders and farmers and said that under the laws of the province an oil company which "wishes to drill for oil on land where the farmer does not own the minerals, has right of entry to the land.' This law was not peculiar to Western Canada, but had its roots in British Common law.

There is a basic difference, however, between the oil seeker and the home builder. The home builder is concerned with the surface — the oil seeker is concerned with what lies well beneath the surface. In the oil business, land acquisition means the securing of leases to mineral rights, and not all the minerals at that. The leases that a land man secures from mineral owners cover, in most cases, only petroleum, natural gas and related hydrocarbons. As we can see, therefore, the terms land acquisition, land men, land department, and so on, are really misnomers. However, in oil exploration, the word "land" is a commonly used term for mineral rights acquisitions.

In conclusion, Mr. Galbraith said that while the biggest part of a landman's job is the securing of leases to mineral rights, an important part of his job is concerned with the surface, as the land men negotiate with farmers on whose land wells will be located. In addition to land for wellsites, they also negotiate for such matters as pipe line rights-of-way, battery locations, flow lines, and other requirements. In all these instances, the oil companies try, wherever possible, to conduct their operations in the manner best suited to the surface owner in order to enable him to continue to conduct his farming operation with least inconvenience.

Exploration

Drilling a wildcat well is an expensive business and those who look for oil don't like to drill them unless they have a reasonable hope they will find oil, said Aubrey Kerr Chief Geologist, Oilwell Operators Ltd., speaking on oil exploration.

He also stated that despite all the advances that have been made in the science of geology and geophysics, the best that oil seekers can say after their exhaustive studies is "In this place we think you might find oil." There is only one way to definitely determine whether oil is present and that is by drilling.

Mr. Kerr explained the work of geologists, geophysicists, and seismograph crews in the search for oil. He also described some of the latest technical devices being used in the oil search throughout western Canada.

Moderator was Tom Steele, Executive Assistant, Canadian Petroleum Assocation, and chairman was C. E. Fulton, vice-president of the Vulcan District Board of Trade, sponsors of the forum.

Question Period

The question period following the talks brought forth several questions on matters relating to the oil industry.

Termed as a "local problem" was a query as to why the price of No. 1 gas in Vulcan was 3 cents a gallon higher than the same gasoline in Calgary. The wholesale price was the same, it was pointed out, the only difference being the cost of transportation.

In reply to another question, it was stated that the price of Texas Gulf crude oil in the U.S. controls the world price and that Alberta crude must be competitive in price in order to gain a share of the market.

At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments were served by the Reid Hill W.I.

Make Your Own Christmas Candles

Fancy candles add gaiety and warmth to your Christmas decoration. Use up odds and ends of old candles or paraffin to make new ones — you may add wax crayons to color paraffin. Remember, wax is highly inflammable so melt it by setting the contained in a pan of hot water. A good contained is a tin can with a pouring lip bent in its edge.

Pretty candles can be cast in individual gelatin molds. Grease each mold with vaseline or a vegetable oil. Melt the wax and fill the mold. Insert a cake candle into the centre of the molded wax as it begins to stiffen to serve as a wick. When the candle is cold it will slide out the mold easily.

You may fashion your own star-shaped [illegible]d from cardboard. Let [illegible] star candles float in a [illegible]y shallow crystal bowl of colored water. Set the bowl, nestled in evergreen boughs and pine cones on your table mirror and you've got a pretty table centre. Use a tin can as a form for fat candles. Remove the top of the can, use it as a false bottom to hold the wick which is threaded through a tiny hole in the centre of the top of the tin can. With the can top dropped to the bottom of the can wrap the free end of the wick cord around a pencil and rest it across the top of the can. [illegible]an with melted wax. If th[illegible] seems hard to unmold d[illegible] can into hot water long enough to soften the wax.

Christmas candles that glow as they burn are beautiful and easy as can be for you to make. Melt ¼ pound of common paraffin in a flat pan; add 1 tablespoon of cream of tarter. Allow it to cool slightly and then beat it rapidly with a rotary egg beater until it looks like beaten egg white. Before this frosting hardens daub it on the candle with a fork — make the layers uneven and frothy in appearance. Put something sparkly like gold dust on the frosting or if you have some imitation or real holly put that on. You can give tired candles from last year a lift by covering them with this "snow". When the candle is lighted it will glow through the white frosting.

A "giant' decorative candle can be made by dribbling wax over a cardboard foundation (any shape) from sections of cardboard joined together with gummed paper. Punch a hole in the top of the form, thread, a length of wicking through and tie a knot on the underside. Melt the wax and allow it to cool until it begins to set. Pour i in a slow stream down the sides of he forms. Gradually it will build up sufficient thickness to cover the cardboard completely in a candle drip finish. When the sides are finished pour soft wax on the top building it up to a depth of one-half inch. Try a giant candle with greenery and your favorite holiday figurine for gay Christmas decor on your table or mantle piece.

Too Many Scrub Pigs

During the past 2 weeks I have had the occasion to travel approximately 100 miles in the County of Vulcan, and the Willow Creek M.D., and was given the opportunity of observing many different swine herds. What I saw was a revelation, before this I did not realize pigs came in so many different colors, and combinations of colors. There are red pigs, black pigs, brown pigs tan pigs, spotted pigs, and pigs with varicolored circles around them a real mixture, which can be summed up in one word,— scrub. It is no small wonder that the percentage of A Grade hogs is decreasing and C grade is becoming more popular. During the week ending November 6th, 1954, the last week for which figures are available 593 hogs were graded A, 336 graded B and 1325 were C, altogether there were 5704 hogs slaughtered during the week mentioned.

There are no doubt many reasons for this very poor grading record. One of the most important here may be the fact that quite a number of straight grain farmers have been forced into pigs through the present wheat marketing condition. These men are really not interested in making pigs a permanent part of their farm enterprise, therefore they will buy or use for breeding purposes nondescript pigs. However they may be making a mistake, pigs of good breeding and type will go to market with no more work or feed and will grade better, thus giving a greater return for the capital, labor and feed involved.

There are lots of good Yorkshire pigs, true there may be strains within the breed that lack vigour, but all strains of Yorkshires don't lack vigour. Some cattlemen like Herefords best, other Angus or Shorthorns, there are good and poo strains in all breeds, we are not justified in condemning a breed because of a few poor doing families within that breed.

The question of hybrid vigour in pigs is another factor contributing to poor quality and grades. It should be remembered that hybrid vigour is most likely to occur when two breeds are crossed. When the progeny of this first cross are mated again we may expect nothing but a poor doing, odd appearing individual to which the term scrub aptly applies. This breeding practice is altogether too common, and is costing the producer many dollars in poor grades. If cross breeding is to be successfully practised two separate pure bred herds must be maintained, as the offspring from cross breeding should never be carried over in the breeding herd.

It is up to each producer to improve the quality of swine in the ered to. For some years now the Canadian, and recently the U.S. consumer also, has shown a preference for lean pork. If we go on producing off-type undesirable hogs there will certainly be an adverse effect on the market returns, as it is the producer who will ultimately take the consequences.

Edmonton Report

By Donald F. Smith
Special Correspondent

EDMONTON — The next session of the Alberta legislature, to open next February, probably will be asked to approve fairly extensive revisions to the methods of granting municipal and road-building funds.

These are the indications drawn from addresses given by Premier Manning and members of his cabinet to the 46th annual convention of the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts held here last week.

For instance, Premier Manning said the government believes there are three major problems facing the province's municipalities. They are increasing costs of education, capital costs and the financial stability of the individual citizen.

Education costs, he said, added to the other municipal costs, are the "straw that is breaking the camel's back." Probably his remarks on education can be related to those of Education Minister Anders O. Aalborg, who told the recent school trustees' meeting the government is making a concerted study of ways of reducing the cost of education to taxpayers.

The government's concern with other municipal costs was stated by Municipal Affairs Minister C. E. Gerhart, who told municipal district and county councillors the next legislative session almost certainly will be considering higher municipal grants. More attention, he indicated, will be given to municipalities actually "in need."

This would be done by changing the present system of grants — one-third on the basis of need and two-thirds on assessment — in favor of one which is based on half need and half assessment. The minister said: "It has become evident more has to be put into that part of the grant system based on need.'

What about Premier Manning's statement concerning the economic stability of the individual? He did not elaborate but perhaps he was thinking of statments he made at the last legislative session when he indicated the government is studying ways of giving direct assistance to citizens.

At the same time he suggested one way to do this would be to give ratepayers certificates to cover a portion of their municipal taxes.

It also could be an indirect answer to the Liberal party's recent request that the individual ratepayer be given taxation relief by an exemption on the first $1,000 of assessment, the loss would mean to the local government being made up by the provincial government.

Also addressing the convention and suggesting a revision in grants was Highways Minister Gordon E. Taylor, who said he was shocked during his travels this summer to find some persons who had been living and farming in particular districts for 20 to 40 years still are not served by gravel roads. In order to remedy such situations in municipalities where low assessments make it impossible to raise enough funds for proper road building, Mr. Taylor said he is recommending special grants.

Money for these grants, he said would be additional to funds totalling about $3 million voted by the legislature to be distributed on the regular grant basis, under which the government pays 75 per cent of the costs of building approved municipal road projects.

The need for such grants for some areas, Mr. Taylor said, stems from the fact, "there are municipal districts which, even if we increased the grants under the present basis, would be unable to match them because of the low assessment."

Other highlights included: Mr. Gerhart, talking on the co-terminous boundaries commission, said he hoped when the commission's work is finished it will be the last "monkeying" with boundaries for 25 or even 50 years. Mr. Taylor deplored the practice of some districts in dividing road grant money on 30 or more projects, saying: 'As long as you go on patching mudholes, we'll never have good roads.' In resolutions, the delegates asked for more uniformity among the districts and from the government in imposing road bans and asked the government for power to make loans for community projects, the loans to be repaid as taxes by the persons affected and requesting the improvements.
